My dear Sir,

I enclose the order mentioned yesterday, believing you know my hand well enough by this time to render it needless to sign this scrap of a note. I feel so much obliged by all your kindness, & only regret that we should have been troubling you at a time when you were very much occupied. I wish you could come here for a holiday - & perhaps the thing is not impracticable. We could receive you anytime before the ^{2nd} of July if that would suit you - but afterwards we have visitors come one after another for some time. It is a long journey, but I can certainly show you a good Schaeffer at the end of it. I shall not see your pretty little present till the end of the week, as Mr. Brown does not return till Thursday - but
