

Home. I had never for a moment contemplated the idea of poor Eliza Smith's becoming a "penitentiary" or being treated in any way differently from any other inmate - I only thought it possible that as she is an interesting & engaging person, some of those connected with the management might so far "take her up" as to think of her if they knew of any situation or opening for her future employment or benefit - when she left ~~the~~ Home.
More than this never entered into my head. This, even, would of course be a mere chance - but I was willing to put one so friendless into the way of such a chance (knowing by the way as I do that there is no such thing as chance.) And that was all.

The terms you mentioned are I believe the same with the ordinary terms at Bournemouth. But there is possibility that there - though Mr. Penoye has dropped his own subscription, which I had been depending upon - I may make interest so far as to procure a Sweet's instead of a month's order. And I think I must try this. But should I fail - (which I should know about before long) do you think it would be troubling your good Mother too much if I were ~~to~~ still to look to her kindness for an admission? -
